

Paddling along the Delaware

About 60 members of the Delaware River Sojourn paddled over Crosswicks Creek in Bordentown Township on Saturday during the finale to an eight-day journey along the Delaware River. After the trip along the river, Sojourners stopped at John A. Roebling Park and the Tulpehaking Nature Center in Mercer County for lunch and an awards ceremony for members.

Kayakers paddle onto the river. [WILLIAM THOMAS CAIN/PHOTOJOURNALIST]

Mitzi Addabbo, of Bethlehem, paddles her kayak on the final day of the eight day Delaware River Sojourn on Saturday at the Delaware River Access in Bordentown. [WILLIAM THOMAS CAIN/PHOTOJOURNALIST]

David Simon, of Bethlehem, gives kayakers a last minute safety session. [WILLIAM THOMAS CAIN/PHOTOJOURNALIST]

Clayton Longenecker, left, of Honesdale, helps Linda Mead, of Princeton, with her life vest. [WILLIAM THOMAS CAIN/PHOTOJOURNALIST]

Michael Padlock, of Levittown, prepares his kayak. [WILLIAM THOMAS CAIN/PHOTOJOURNALIST]

A woman prepares her canoe for the river. [WILLIAM THOMAS CAIN/PHOTOJOURNALIST]